W07 Reflection

AI Use Declaration: Gemini helped with translation support, formatting, and clarity review after I finished drafting my reflection based on my personal experience. All character assessments, relationship examples, and agency development observations are based on my actual growth during this course.

W07 Reflection: Legacy Metrics Assessment

1. Character Growth Assessment

Over these seven weeks, the challenges of leadership have helped me cultivate greater humility and self-awareness. When facing criticism or pressure, I now strive to listen actively and analyze feedback to identify area where I can improve as a leader. Instead of reacting defensively, I have learned to acknowledge my own mistakes openly. My response to leadership has shifted significantly: I no longer try to exercise tight control over every detail. Instead, I focus on teaching and guiding those I lead so they can grow, learn from their own process, and improve their skills over time.

2. Relationships and Influence on Others

The most meaningful relational growth during this course has occurred within my marriage. By consciously stepping back from controlling every situation and allowing my wife and I to make decisions and learn together, our bond of mutual trust has deepened considerably. Applying these principles at home and work has transformed how I interact with others. When I resist the urge to dictate outcomes and instead support people through their learning process, it creates a safe environment built on honest communication, collaboration, and shared confidence.

3. Agency Development and Leadership Multiplication

A clear example of agency development involves a coworker who serves as our security officer. He frequently struggled to extract video clips from our surveillance camera system. Initially, it was faster for me to extract the footage for him. However, I chose to invest time in teaching him the process step-by-step. Today, he independently creates folders on USB drives and extracts the necessary video files without needing my presence or direction. Teaching him required extra effort upfront, but it built his independent capability and freed me to focus on other high-priority tasks.

4. Reflection on Lasting Leadership Impact

The routines and capabilities established during this course will endure long after I step away. Key processes, such as video extraction procedures, standardized form filling, and diagnostic steps like password changes on biometric systems, are now embedded in my team's skill set. My ongoing role is to verify their understanding and remain available as a technical backup while allowing them to handle routine issues independently. Moving forward, I will measure my success not by personal visibility or immediate control, but by enduring metrics: the growth of my character, the strength of my relationships, and the expanding agency of those around me.